

FACILITIES MANAGEMENT

When it comes to property and construction, facilities management is vital to ensure a structure is safe, maintained, functional and operates efficiently.

There is a wide range of disciplines in facilities management; often referred to as hard and soft services. Hard incorporates physical assets such as heating and elevators, with soft focussing on people focussed tasks such as security and catering. We operate across the full spectrum of facilities management within the property and construction arena.

Our team understands the impact facilities management teams have on the built environment; they are crucial in helping businesses run efficiently. As such, competition for the top talent in the market is fierce, with demand outweighing supply in many cases. Furthermore, the evolution of smart buildings, net-zero buildings and sustainable engineering (to name a few!) are transforming the facilities management sector. The developments are resulting in new skills required from candidates to implement, manage and develop processes.
